

There's still time to request an in-person consultation meeting with Glasgow City Council's Food Growing Team! Please consider requesting a meeting to discuss the draft allotment rules and regulations. Deadline: Monday, 20 November 2023.

Why You Need to Have Your Say

When you have a question or a problem on your plot who do you go to?

Under the new regulations it looks like you'll have to contact your Food Growing Officer on the Council. No more asking someone on your site Committee because they won't be taking decisions about the way your site operates any more - nor will you because association AGMs won't count either when it comes to that.

Make Sure You Sign Up for a Chat with the Food Growing Team about losing the Power of your Vote

Write (before November 20th) to glasgowfoodgrowing@glasgow.gov.uk

Subject: Draft Allotment Regulations Consultation

I would personally like to make representations about Glasgow's Draft Allotment Regulations to the Food Growing Team.

It would be helpful if you would let us know at GAFForum@gmail.com if you have requested a meeting and what you discussed. This type of information will help us during the GAF consultation meeting as well as during other meetings with GCC representatives, politicians and the media.